As you know, unrest in the Middle East continues and in places is growing more intense and unpredictable. I commented on the highly fluid and complex situation in this region during a recent interview with British television Sky News. You may view the interview by clicking on the video image below: