

Nebraska lawmakers aren't ready to focus solely on stricter gun control measures some are calling for in response to last week's deadly elementary school shooting in Newtown, Conn.

The state's elected officials say conversations on mental health and violence in American culture must accompany any discussion regarding restrictions on firearms.

Click here to read the full article.